

Zeng Lingliang, BA, Master of Law and Ph.D of Law of Wuhan University, China; LL. M of the University of Michigan, U.S., Postgraduate Certificate of European University Institute, Italy, is the present Dean and Professor of Faculty of Law, University of Macau. Before his service in Macau, he was an awardee of the Cheung Kong Scholars Award Program Changjiang Scholar and Jean Monnet Chair of European Union Law in Wuhan University. He is one of the first 3 Chinese individuals on the indicative list of panelists nominated by the DSB of WTO. He is widely published on WTO issues, EU law and international law both at home and abroad(mostly in Chinese). His representative monographs are European Communities and Modern International Law (Wuhan University Press,1992) and its revised edition European Union and Modern International Law (Zhiyi Press,Taiwan,1994), The Law of World Trade Organization (Wuhan University Press,1996), International Law and China in the Early 21st Century (Wuhan University Press, 2005) and Essentials of EU Law—in the New Perspective of the Treaty on a Constitution for Europe,2007).