

The New China-Russia-U.S. Triangle: Causes and Consequences

DATE: 26 April, 2015

VENUE: E4-G051, UNIVERSITY OF MACAU

During the Cold War era, the China-Russia-U.S. triangle relationship dominated international politics.

Now we might be witnessing the return of a new China-Russia-U.S. triangle as China and Russia seem to be joining forces to challenge a US-led global order.

Is a China-Russia strategic alliance possible? How does the Ukraine crisis shape Russia-U.S. relations? What does it mean for the new global order?

This Conference will address such questions by identifying the causes and consequences of the new triangle.
