09:30 Opening words by Merlien Institute
Agnes Lam Lok Fong - Interim Head of Department of Communication, Faculty of Social Sciences and Humanities - University of Macau (China)

Chair: Wu Mei - Associate Professor, Faculty of Social Sciences & Humanities - University of Macau (China)

Interactive workshop

09:45 CAQDAS: Comparing the two most popular qualitative data analysis software in terms of their practical usability and methodological utility

In this interactive session, Dr Elson Szeto will be reviewing two popular CAQDAS packages: ATLAS.ti and NVivo. He will be comparing the software packages in terms of their methodological utility and practical usability within the framework of managing, exploring, reflecting and integrating qualitative data. He will also highlight the core analysis features and will provide recommendations to researchers on how to make an informed choice based on their research methodologies. This session is beneficial to researchers who are considering using software for enhancing their qualitative data analysis and reporting processes.

Conducted by:

Elson Szeto - Team Leader of e-Learning, LTTC The Hong Kong Institute of Education (China)

12:15 Lunch Break

13:30 Increasing the rigor and efficiency of research through the use of qualitative data analysis software

Suria Baba - Deputy Director, Institute of Principalship Studies - University of Malaya (Malaysia)

14:15 Using ATLAS.ti for accelerating and reporting qualitative data analysis

Siti Rokiah Siwok - Lecturer & Doctoral Candidate Universiti Teknologi Malaysia

15:00 Networking Coffee break

15:30 Dynamics of the Web: analysis of user-generated contents from a dynamic approach by ePOP TextMiner

Angus Cheong, - Assistant Professor, Faculty of Social Sciences & Humanities - University of Macau (China)

16:15 Artichoke: a tool for transcribing, coding, searching and retrieving video data efficiently

Tony Fetherston - Team Leader, Centre of Learning & Development - Edith Cowan University (Australia)

17:00 Summary and closing remarks from chair

17:15 - 18:15 Networking Reception
