Latin American Studies Council of Asia and Oceania (CELAO)

The Latin American Studies Council of Asia and Oceania (CELAO) was established in Osaka, Japan in 2003 to serve as a forum for multidisciplinary research on Latin America and to promote cooperation with similar organizations devoted to Latin American studies in the Asia and Oceania region. It was established at the 11th General Assembly of FIEALC*, hosted by the National Museum of Ethnology and Osaka University in 2003.

The members are China, South Korea, India, Philippines, Australia, New Zealand, Russia, and Japan.

FIEALC (Federación Internacional de Estudios de América Latina y el Caribe) is the international organization, composed of more than 100 academic institutions both inside and outside of Latin America. The head office is at the National Autonomous University of Mexico.*
